Preface

This is a subject guide to official publications of Kenya for the period 1886 to 1975.¹ Included are citations to documents by the Republic of Kenya (1963–75), the Kenya Colony and Protectorate² (1920–63), and the East Africa Protectorate³ (1895–1920), Great Britain (1886–1975), and the East African Community and its predecessors (1926–75). Publications prepared by organizations and individuals on behalf, or at the request, of the Kenya Government are identified.

The bibliography is based on the holdings of the Library of Congress, other federal libraries in the Washington area, and North American libraries reporting to the National Union Catalog, to New Serial Titles, and to the Joint Acquisitions List of Africana. Material in the Library of Congress is indicated by call numbers for cataloged works, and by the symbols DLC-G&M, DLC-LL, and DLC-Micro for publications held by the Geography and Map Division, the Law Library, and the Microform Reading Room respectively. The symbol DLC is used for uncataloged items in the Library of Congress. National Union Catalog symbols (see “Key to Symbols,” below) designate material not in the Library of Congress but held by other North American libraries. Additional sources used in the compilation of this guide are the book catalogs of the Colonial Office Library (Foreign and Commonwealth Office), and the Library of the Royal Commonwealth Society. Also, the Kenya debates (1899–1975), the Catalogue of Government Publications (1971–74) issued by the Government Printer of Kenya, and the various accessions lists issued by the universities of East Africa were profitably consulted (see “Key to Sources Quoted,” below).

The subject arrangement of the guide is similar to that used in Africa South of the Sahara; Index to Periodical Literature, 1900–1970 (Boston, G. K. Hall, 1971. 4 v.) and its First Supplement (1973. 521 p.) compiled in the African Section by H. Dwight Beers, who assisted in the arrangement of this bibliography. Within each subject the entries are arranged alphabetically by author and title. Exceptions to this format have been made in order to place committee reports directly following the publications to which they relate. Additional information on the communications, finance, meteorology, research, and transportation of Kenya within the East African region is included in the compiler's East African Community; Subject Guide to Official Publications (Washington, Library of Congress; for sale by the Supt. of Docs., U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1976. xvi, 272 p.). American documents on Kenya are included in The United States and Africa; Guide to Official Documents and Government-Sponsored Publications on Africa, 1785–1975 (Washington, Library of ² Called Kenya by most libraries.

³ Called British East Africa with Uganda and Zanzibar until after World War I when Tanganyika became a British protectorate. The East Africa Protectorate is not to be confused with the East African Community (1967–77), a defunct regional organization, or its predecessors.

Congress; for sale by the Supt. of Docs., U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1978). The method for grouping languages is based on the explanation in Language in Kenya (Nairobi, Oxford University Press, 1974. 589 p.).

Following the main index, which is confined to authors (personal and corporate), titles, and subjects, there is an Index to Major Series that includes Kenya sessional papers, British command papers, and microfilm series, such as African confidential print C.O. 879 and Colonial Office Library East Africa pamphlet.

The compiler wishes to express his appreciation to the Library of the National Assembly of Kenya and the Library of the Commonwealth Forestry Institute of Oxford University for their cooperation. Generous assistance was also received from the staff of the Library of Congress Office, Nairobi, Kenya, and its former field directors, Alvin Moore, Jr., John C. Crawford, and Ruth A. Thomas. Betty J. Harris and Gary D. Jensen assisted in the preparation of the guide. The cover design is by Samir M. Zoghby.

More recent publications of Kenya may be identified by consulting the Accessions List: Eastern Africa, Jan./Mar. 1976 and subsequent issues.⁴

"The entire process of preparation and implementation of the study has been a mutual effort with the Ministry of Co-operatives and Marketing."

"For obvious reasons the process of fragmenting economic large scale farms in the former Scheduled Areas cannot continue indefinitely. The long term answer, however, is still the Africanization of the former Scheduled Areas, but not to the detriment of agricultural productivity. What is urgently required is the maintenance and increasing production of cash and export crops, not merely land transfer."

"The Government of Kenya has considered the recommendations contained in this Report and has accepted them."

"In the course of our deliberations it became clear to us that the problem generally referred to as overstocking is merely one aspect—though possibly in its far-reaching effects on the land, the most important and dangerous aspect—of wider problems created by the failure of African rural economy and social structure to keep pace with changes that have been brought about by the contact of African peoples with western civilization."

Uganda Railway.

Note: In 1896 the Parliament of Great Britain approved the construction of a railroad from the port of Mombasa across the East Africa Protectorate to Lake Victoria. The construction of the railroad reached Lake Victoria at Kisumu, then called Port Florence, in January 1902. A fleet of steamers connected ports in Uganda, notably Entebbe, Kampala, and Jinja, with Kisumu. Before World War I, railroad lines were constructed in both the East Africa Protectorate and Uganda. In 1924 a railroad was built from Nakuru, Kenya Colony and Protectorate (formerly the East Africa Protectorate), on the main line from Mombasa to Kisumu, across Kenya and into Uganda.

On February 3, 1926, the Kenya and Uganda (Transport) Order in council was issued, and the name of the railroad was changed to the Kenya and Uganda Railways and Harbours. From that date, the control of the railroad, harbor, and steamship services was vested in the high commissioner for Transport, who was the governor of Kenya Colony and Protectorate.

Banks and Banking

Central Bank of Kenya.

Note: After independence on December 12, 1963, Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda continued to support a regional currency managed by the East African Currency Board, an organization in existence since 1919. In February 1965, the government of Tanzania indicated its intention to establish a central national bank and to issue its own currency. Consequently, the Central Bank of Kenya Act was signed on March 24, 1966, and the bank was formally set up on May 23, 1966, with an authorized capital of Ksh 26 million. The bank is charged with issuing currency and coin, developing and maintaining the monetary, credit, and banking system, and also with advising the Kenya government on financial matters.

Imperial British East Africa Company.

Note: In April 1888, William Mackinnon and a group of British philanthropists and businessmen created the Imperial British East Africa Company from the British East African Association. By its charter, based on the concession of May 1887 from the Sultan of Zanzibar, the company administered a narrow strip of the East African mainland which served as a base for further penetration of the upper Nile basin and, in particular, of Uganda. The company was poorly managed and underfinanced for its commercial and administrative activities. Uganda was evacuated by the company in April 1893, with a protectorate being proclaimed by the British Foreign Office in June 1894. In 1895, the East Africa Protectorate took over the remaining territory lying between Uganda and the East African coast. Both protectorates remained under the Foreign Office until 1905, when they were transferred to the Colonial Office. After the company's withdrawal, a protracted controversy ensued with the British government over compensation to the company. The company was terminated in 1897.

Additional information on the company's publications and remaining archives is included in A. T. Matson, The Records of the Imperial British East Africa Company, 1888-1897 (Library materials on Africa, v. 10, no. 2, Oct. 1972: 83-88).

Note: During the colonial period, sessional papers were issued as documents on questions brought before the governor or legislative council. In many cases, the government was responding to a report of a committee appointed by the governor, or by a select committee of the Legislative Council. The assignment of a number to a sessional paper,
and its publication by the government printer
of Kenya Colony and Protectorate, apparently depended on the wishes of the colonial government, which decided those questions to be restricted and those to be made public. For example, in 1955, Sessional paper no. 107 was laid on the table of the Legislative Council, but only six other sessional papers from 1955
have been identified in the Kenya debates or in libraries.

In this guide, sessional papers are arranged by subject. Many papers directly follow a committee report, upon which the government decided to comment as to its acceptance or rejection. Some of the sessional papers even have the same title as the report of the committee to which they refer. Sessional papers can be identified in series by consulting
the Index to Major Series under the entry:
Kenya Colony and Protectorate. Legislative Council. Sessional paper.

"This paper describes work in East Africa sponsored by Overseas Geological Surveys. The fieldwork was carried out between December 1959 and June 1962; the airborne surveys were flown by contractors, and the ground surveys were made by the authors, two of whom at the time were with Overseas Geological Surveys and the third with the Geological Survey Division, Tanzania. The paper compares the three airborne techniques employed, in the light of the results obtained over two mineralized areas in East Africa [the Gieta goldfield in Tanzania and the Migori gold belt in Kenya] An abridged account of the results has been published in 1965 in Geological Survey of Canada Paper 65-6, 'Some guides to mineral exploration', edited by F. R. W. Neale."
